PART I - NEW ACADEMIC PROGRAMS AND PROGRAM CHANGES

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND NATURAL RESOURCES

1. Establish a Minor in Environmental Soil Science in the Department of Plant, Soil and Microbial Sciences. The University Committee on Undergraduate Education (UCUE) recommended approval of this request at its September 28, 2023 meeting.

a. Background Information:

Soil science has always been an interdisciplinary field involving chemistry, physics, biology, and geology. Most soil science programs have historically focused on row crop production, a vital application of soil science. Soil science also impacts forestry, wetland management, urban stormwater planning, archeology, and many other related disciplines. Soil scientists are hired by Federal agencies including the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Forest Service, the U.S. Geological Survey, and the Environmental Protection Agency. These Federal jobs, and many analogous state jobs across the country, require applicants to meet the Federal OPM Soil Science Series 0470 job requirements, which include 15 credits in soil science and at least 30 credits of supporting scientific course work. The Certified Professional Soil Scientist (CPSS) program, administered by the Soil Science Society of America, essentially mirrors these Federal job requirements for many private sector jobs; many soil scientists working in the septic services industry and other industries pursue certification as a CPSS after graduation.

Current MSU students who are interested in pursuing one of these Federal, state, or private sector soil science jobs have limited educational opportunities. If they pursue a B.S. in Crop and Soil Sciences (CSS), they will meet the soil science credit requirements for most jobs, but they will not meet the course work requirements to be competitive applicants for jobs in forest soils, wetland soils, and other environments that are not represented in the CSS curriculum. Similarly, MSU students who pursue majors such as Forestry or Fisheries and Wildlife will find that they have enough supporting course work to pursue jobs in those fields, but that they lack enough soil science credits to apply for soil scientist positions in those diverse environments.

The purpose of the Minor in Environmental Soil Science is to fill this educational gap at MSU. A student who wants to work as a soil scientist in nearly any environment can pursue whatever major they prefer to specialize in an environment (e.g., vineyard, urban, forest, wetland), while pursuing the Minor in Environmental Soil Science in order to meet the specific requirements of many soil science jobs. The minor is flexible enough to allow students who are more generally interested in soil health, regenerative agriculture, and similar topics to still pursue substantial course work in soil science while allowing up to 6 credits of closely related electives.

b. Academic Programs Catalog Text:

The Minor in Environmental Soil Science is intended to serve students and professionals who plan to pursue careers in soil science, soil health, or related agricultural, natural resource, and environmental sciences with a focus on the sustainable management of soils to produce food, fiber, and other products while conserving or regenerating natural and managed ecosystems.

The requirements meet the soil science course work requirements for Federal and state employment as soil scientists, as well as the course work requirements necessary to become a Certified Professional Soil Scientist (CPSS).
At least 9 credits counted towards the requirements for this minor must be unique. Unique credits must not be used to fulfill another university, college, or major requirement in the student's program.

With the approval of the department and college that administer the student's degree program, 6 credits of course work that are used to satisfy the requirements for the minor may also be used to satisfy the requirements for the bachelor's degree.

Students who are interested in enrolling should contact an undergraduate advisor in the Department of Plant, Soil and Microbial Sciences.

Effective Spring 2024.
2. Establish a Master of Science degree in Global Plant Breeding in the Department of Plant, Soil and Microbial Sciences. The University Committee on Graduate Studies (UCGS) recommended approval of this request at its September 18, 2023 meeting.

   a. Background Information:

   The world opening to online education has provided Michigan State University (MSU) with an opportunity to offer its educational programs beyond the borders of Michigan and the United States. Faculty members in the Department of Plant, Soil and Microbial Sciences (PSM) and other departments at MSU have been developing and offering online courses. The online professional certificate course, "Plant Breeding 2 Fight Hunger (https://www.canr.msu.edu/courses/plantbreeding-2-fight-hunger)," was offered by the PSM department to an international audience during the pandemic. The course was well-received with participants expressing interest in an online M.S. degree option.

   MSU has a unique opportunity to be a leader in providing online Plant Breeding education to a global audience. Only Texas A&M University and Iowa State University currently offer online M.S. degree programs in Plant Breeding. In the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, we have faculty in the Plant Breeding, Genetics, and Biotechnology (PBGB) program who have expertise in plant breeding and have built decades of collaborations with partner countries and institutions around the world. People working in plant breeding and studying this field throughout the world would be interested in and benefit from the opportunity to obtain a post graduate degree from MSU while still working and studying in their home state or country. Online education offers a cost-effective opportunity for students to obtain a valuable degree from MSU without having to leave their current employment, families, or countries. In addition, this online M.S. degree program offers MSU an opportunity to increase student numbers and graduation rates by providing admission to a professional degree program where on-campus graduate research and teaching assistantships are limited by the availability of funding.

   The goal of the online Master of Science degree in Global Plant Breeding is to attract professionals currently employed at seed companies, fruit breeding companies, CGIAR centers, and National Agricultural Research Systems (NARS). We have received letters of support for this online M.S. degree program from several private companies in the United States, including Corteva, Bayer, Simplot, Driscoll, NARS, and several potential students from the certificate course and employed outside of the U.S. in plant breeding. This program is not focused on MSU students that are in an existing degree program at MSU.

   Plant Breeding is a rapidly evolving field. Developing a new online M.S. degree program offers opportunities to develop new courses for the plant breeding curriculum that offer all students in graduate programs in plant breeding on campus new knowledge in laws and regulations, design thinking and leadership, and global seed systems.

   b. Academic Programs Catalog Text:

   The Master of Science Degree in Global Plant Breeding provides opportunities for working professionals to obtain new knowledge in laws and regulations, design thinking and leadership, and global seed systems.

   In addition to meeting the requirements of the University and of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, students must meet the requirements specified below.
